Historical Sketch . . . of the University of Nebraska

FROM ITS MEAGER BIRTH on Feb. 15, 1869, the University of Nebraska has grown from a small three-story building in a "prairie pasture" to a modern physical plant valued at more than $40 million.

More than 80,000 young people have sought knowledge in its lecture halls and laboratories. The faculty has grown to its present size of nearly 600 and its curricula offers a choice of nearly 2,000 courses.

In the teaching department, the University is composed of ten colleges and four schools. Present enrollment averages about 8,000 a semester, and students come from all over the world—every state in the Union and 44 foreign countries.

In research, Nebraska is best known for its work in the agricultural field, including the development of a new variety of wheat, called Pawnee.

In public-service work, the University's agricultural extension service sponsors yearly some 30,000 farm meetings, with a combined attendance for more than 650,000 persons. Its Extension Division gives instruction by correspondence and evening classes to 18,000 persons a year.

The University is guided in these efforts by Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin, who at 41 is one of the youngest land-grant university presidents in the nation.

Looking to the future of skyrocketing enrollments, the University is nearing the completion of a $14 million building program. Completed just last year was the $2 million Residence Halls for Men which houses 1,000 students.

Other facts about the University:

The tax-supported institution carries on its work in more than 100 buildings on three campuses—the main campus and Agricultural campus, both in Lincoln, and the medical campus in Omaha. The downtown Lincoln campus alone occupies more than 75 acres.

The University Libraries have a collection of 550,000 catalogued volumes, 700,000 bibliographical units, 46,000 maps and aerial photographs, and about one million pamphlets and manuscripts.

In 1953, a study made by "Who's Who" showed that the University ranked ninth among all state universities in number of alumni in "Who's Who." The present edition of "Who's Who In Engineering" shows the University's College of Engineering and Architecture ranking second of 475 schools in the nation in percentage of alumni regarded as outstanding engineers.

The University Museum of Natural History is one of the finest in the country. It is noted particularly for its great hall of elephants, and the skeleton of the Lincoln County Mammoth, which stands 14 feet high at the shoulders, making it the largest recorded fossil elephant in existence. More than 200,000 persons visit the Museum annually.

The Block "O" Flash Card Section

DURING THE past three years Block "O," Ohio State University's flash card section, has performed its stunts before thousands of football fans at half-time of home games.

All of the work which goes into making Block "O" is done by the students. One thousand wear scarlet and white plastic caps and comprise the large block located on the west side of the stadium in Section 13A.

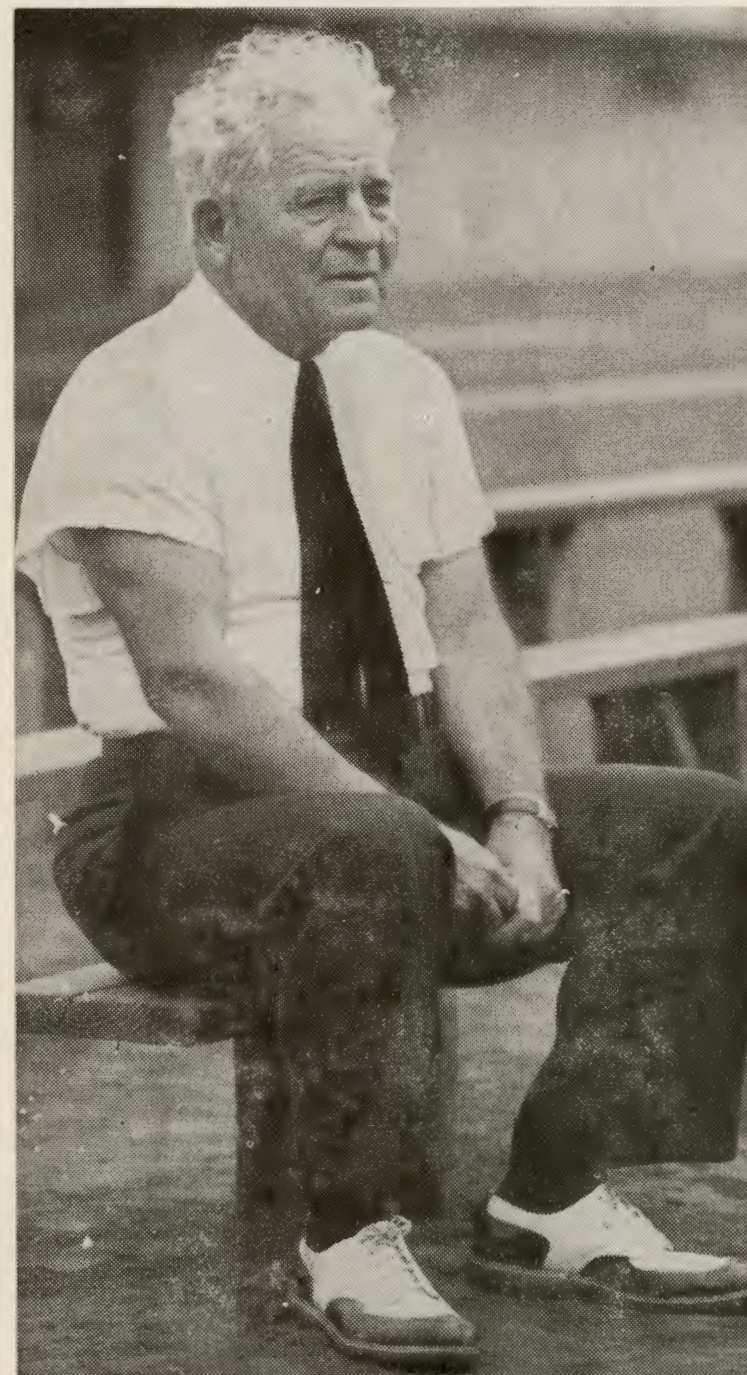

Directions for seating formations and flashing stunt cards are given over walkie-talkies carried by students who wear white sweaters with grey Block "O" letters. Calling off the stunts in a sequence form is the job of the field director.

Since the reorganization of Block "O," remarkable progress has been made. Today it is recognized by colleges and universities across the nation for its outstanding contribution to Ohio State football.

Ohio State Joins Tribute to Mr. Stagg

By LEO FISCHER

(President, Football Writers' Association of America)

American college and universities today honor Amos Alonzo Stagg, now 94 years of age.

NO MATTER how capable or fluent those of us in this sports-writing business may be, now and then we encounter something for which we find words entirely inadequate.

Such a task, for instance, as trying to write a "tribute" to Amos Alonzo Stagg, now 94 years of age.

As a theological student, as a great undergraduate pitcher and football player at Yale, as a football coach at Chicago for forty years and elsewhere for twenty more, as a life member of the Football Rules Committee since its origin, as a devoted husband for more than 60 years to an equally devoted wife, as the head of a gracious family, and as a loyal friend, he has accomplished in his one lifetime the goals for which all of us strive.

As long as we can remember, Amos Alonzo Stagg has been an inspiration not only to athletics, but to the entire American way of life. All of us — writers, coaches, players, officials and fans — join in paying him homage on "Stagg Day" this September 29, so designated by the Order of the "C" at the University of Chicago.

Ohio State Salutes

STUDENT SAFETY PATROL

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY today salutes the 3,000 Franklin County members of the School Safety Patrol who are seated in the south bleachers of the stadium.

The boys and girls are guests of the Columbus Automobile Club and the University.

Members of the Patrol are selected for their aptitude, dependability, interest in their task, popularity with their fellow students and scholastic standing. There are more than 550,000 boys and girls in 14,000 communities throughout the country who protect the lives of 12,500,000 class-mates.

Because of the School Safety Patrol, safety education and other safety activities, the traffic accident fatality rate for children between 5 and 14 has decreased 30 per cent in the last 25 years.

The functions of the Patrol are to instruct, direct and control members of the student body in crossing streets and highways; to assist teachers and parents in the instruction of school children in safety practices and in the use of streets and highways at all times and places.

Special awards are made to members in the form of meritorious service pins, merit award medals and patrol life-saver medals, given for exceptional accomplishments while on duty.

This photo shows George (Tommy) Patten, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Patten, 75 Midcliff, Whitehall, who, on Dec. 19, 1955, was credited with possibly saving the life of a first grade pupil. He was presented a Citation certificate by Vice President Richard W. Nixon, awarded by the American Automobile Association's Safety Patrol Life Saving Board.

Meet The Cornhuskers

ENDS

Clarence Cook, sophomore from McCook, came to Nebraska after a tour of service with the Marines. Top candidate among group of green wingmen during spring drills. . . . Marlin Hilding, junior from Red Oak, Ia., came unheralded two years ago and was considered the "find" in his freshman year. As a sophomore last fall, an injured back kept him out the latter part of season.

CLARENCE COOK

. . . Michael (Hatcher) Lee, sophomore from Grand Island, who played his final year of high school football at Lincoln Central. He earned three letters in football, three in track and two in basketball. . . . Howard McVay, sophomore from Ogallala, moved up rapidly during spring drills. All-State halfback at Ogallala in 1953.

TACKLES

Jerry Petersen, senior from Cambridge, back after a year's absence, is quick and welcomes contact. Played in the Orange Bowl with the Huskers in 1954. . . . Lester Kampe, junior from Red Oak, Ia., became a starter at guard as a sophomore last fall. Has speed, agility and desire. . . . Jack Fleming, senior from Kimball and letter winner. Fine student and chosen for All-Scholastic team in Big Seven last year.

GUARDS

LaVerne Torczon, senior from Platte Center, and a six-man footballer in high school. Two letter winner and has played center, guard and tackle during his two years. . . . James Murphy, senior from Columbus, was a starter as a sophomore, but a broken bone in one leg shelved him almost the entire season in 1955. . . . Donald Rhoda, junior from York, won his spurs as a sophomore tackle. Always battling the weight problem, Rhoda has peeled off 20 pounds. . . . Arthur Klein, junior from Plymouth, Pa., served in relief as a sophomore but was top right guard in spring drills. . . . Jerry Wheeler, junior from Milan, Ill., an All-State guard in high school and top prep wrestler, finishing second in state.

CENTERS

Robert Berguin, senior from Sioux Falls, S. D. where he was All-State and All-America at Washington High. Lettered in both previous years here. . . . Robert Lyall, one of the older players at 25. Saw Navy service in Hawaii and Alaska. Played service ball with three different service teams, San Diego NTC, Treasure Island Navy and Alameda Navy.

QUARTERBACKS

DONALD ERWAY

Sioux Falls, S. D., was a two-letter winner in football and three in basketball in high school.

Donald Erway, senior from Lincoln, two-year letterman, played 459 out of possible 600 minutes last fall. Underwent knee surgery a second time during summer to correct troubles which have bothered him in cold weather. Two-letterman in both football and baseball.

. . . George Harshman, junior from Dickerson Run, Pa., was the No. 1 signal caller in spring drills. Good passer, kicker and ball handler. . . . Gordon Englert, senior from

LEFT HALFBACKS

Benny Dillard, sophomore from Mt. Pleasant, Tex., is the fastest among the backs. He has done :09.6 in the 100. Not big (5-7 and 159) Benny showed more than speed, however, in the spring drills. . . . William Hawkins, junior from Beatrice, will get a shot at a halfback berth after playing in the line last fall. It will not be altogether new to him. . . . Lyle Martin, back after three years as an Air Force staff sergeant, played halfback on Air Force European championship team.

RIGHT HALFBACKS

William Greenlaw, senior from Portland, Me., deceptively fast and has ability to get out of spots on a football field that appear securely locked. Pitcher and outfielder in baseball. . . . Frank Nappi, junior from Portland, Me., probably best running passer on squad. Hurt last fall and did not play, so has three years of eligibility remaining. Lettered in football and baseball in high school. . . . Darrel Pinkston, sophomore from Grand Island, possesses fair speed and plenty of desire. Was No. 1 right halfback in spring drills in absence of Greenlaw who was with the baseball team. Lacks experience but coming rapidly as spring practice closed.

FULLBACKS

Jerry Nathan Brown, junior from Minden, lettered at guard last fall. Great team man, volunteering to leave backfield for guard spot when injuries weakened the latter position. Played 202 minutes last season. . . . Richard McCashland, sophomore from Geneva, won four letters in football, basketball and track during his high school career, and was named to a national honor society scholastically.
